

Meet Dr. Rick Jetter

Rick Jetter, Ph.D. (a.k.a. “Dr. J.”) is an educator, author, speaker, and national education consultant. He has worked in the field of education for over 21 years and has held the positions of: alternative education teacher, English teacher, assistant principal, principal, assistant superintendent, and superintendent of schools before pursuing a career in consulting, speaking, writing, and publishing. Rick has recently returned to the classroom as a Grade 9 English teacher and Humanities Department Coordinator at the Western NY Maritime Charter School. Rick is currently one (of a very small handful) of scholars and thought leaders who develops narrative theory research models for transforming school culture and carrying out school reform initiatives. He has written 6 books for the educational community, numerous articles, and has also contributed various chapters for other authors’ edited works. Finally, Rick’s professional interests lie in adversity training for educators, student voice, leadership training, and school reform initiatives. You can learn more about his work by also visiting www.rickjetter.com and @RickJetter on most social media channels.
